

S&P 500
4,899.61
+8.64 (+0.18%)

Dow 30
38,117.45
+8.02 (+0.02%)

Nasdaq
15,518.62
+63.25 (+0.41%)

Russell 2000
1,987.27
+8.94 (+0.44%)

ites

■ South China Morning Post

Conservative vote plunged in Canada's most Chinese party pay price for tough stance on Beijing?

Ian Young in Vancouver
September 23, 2021 · 7 min read

Almost as soon as he entered Canada's parliament in 2019, Conservative Kenny Chiu became a prominent advocate for what he called Hong Kong's "political freedom", and a tough critic of Beijing.

Weeks after being comfortably elected in Steveston-Richmond East, one of Canada's most ethnically Chinese electorates, Chiu was back in his birthplace of Hong Kong as an international monitor for the city's district council elections.

He would go on to become vice-chair of parliament's subcommittee on international human rights, which sanctioned Chinese individuals and entities over alleged human rights violations in Xinjiang.

Do you have questions about the biggest topics and trends from around the world? Get the answers with SCMP Knowledge, our new platform of curated content with explainers, FAQs, analyses and infographics brought to you by our award-winning team.

But now, after less than two years as an MP, Chiu is out, having suffered a hefty swing against him of 8.3 percentage points in Monday's election.

Quote Lookup

TRENDING

- 1. GM Q4 earnings preview: Full-year profit outlook, EV game plan, Cruise

Source: Elections Canada
preliminary results
SCMP

-11.9%

-8.3%

4. UPDATE 1-US bank regulator to boost transparency of merger reviews, scrap automatic approvals
5. Tax season is under way. Here are some tips to navigate it.

This graph depicts Conservative loss of vote share in percentage points in the 2021 Canadian general election, compared to the 2019 election, in the electorates of Richmond Centre and Steveston-Richmond East, according to preliminary tallies. Graphic: SCMP alt=This graph depicts Conservative loss of vote share in percentage points in the 2021 Canadian general election, compared to the 2019 election, in the electorates of Richmond Centre and Steveston-Richmond East, according to preliminary tallies. Graphic: SCMP

And he believes at least part of that was because of what he called a campaign of "disinformation" about his stances on China and Hong Kong. Anonymous WeChat messages had accused Chiu of wanting mainland Chinese immigrants to register as foreign agents.

The Chinese government sanctioned him for his role on the rights committee. And China's ambassador Cong Peiwu launched a thinly veiled attack on Canada's Tories when he said Beijing opposed politicians who were "smearing" China.

Chiu's Conservative colleague and fellow Hong Kong immigrant Alice Wong suffered an even worse swing of 11.9 percentage points, preliminary results show, in the neighbouring metro Vancouver seat of Richmond Centre, previously a Conservative stronghold. Her defeat is yet to be confirmed but it was an unexpected humbling for Wong, a Tory MP since 2008.

The Richmond swings were extreme. Across all of British Columbia, the Conservative vote share was down only about 0.6 percentage points, while nationwide, it was up 0.3 percentage points.

In an election day interview, Chiu said doors had been slammed in his face on the campaign trail, and some previous supporters had abandoned him.

He blamed this on "communist China endorsed" disinformation in Chinese-language newspapers and radio that were "spreading half truths and complete lies" about his positions on Hong Kong and China.

Conservative Canadian MP Alice Wong had represented Richmond Centre since 2008, but now faces a narrow defeat according to preliminary results in the 2021 election. Photo: Alice Wong/YouTube

Canada's House of Commons will be little changed as a result of Monday's election, which saw the Liberal Party of Prime Minister Justin Trudeau returned as a minority government.

But the Tories' hammering in Richmond, the most Chinese city in Canada, raises questions about whether the Conservatives had paid a price for a platform that took a hard line with Beijing.

The Tories lost two other seats in metro Vancouver where the Chinese population is not as significant.

But these were close races. Cloverdale-Langley City flipped back to the Liberals after Conservative MP Tamara Jansen saw her vote share slide 1.3 percentage points. In Port Moody-Coquitlam, Tory Nelly Shin actually improved her vote share by 0.9 percentage points, but lost a tight three-way race to the New Democratic Party candidate Bonita Zarrillo.

The Richmond electorates presented a very different story.

Richmond Centre is 58.4 per cent ethnically Chinese, making it the second-most Chinese electorate in all of Canada, behind Markham-Unionville (64.2 per cent) in Ontario, according to country's census. Hong Kong-born people make up 12.6 per cent of the Richmond Centre population, and mainland Chinese immigrants make up 24.8 per cent.

on Monday that the electorate defied "simplistic assumptions" about how a person might stand on various issues based on whether they were Hong Kong or mainland immigrants.

His donors and campaigning team included enthusiastic mainland Chinese immigrants, he said.

"It's easy to say, 'oh, Hongkongers are supportive of freedom and democracy, and mainlanders are not'. My observation is, it's not so simple," said Chiu.

Conservative MP Kenny Chiu represented Steveston-Richmond East for less than two years before losing in the 2021 election. Photo: Kenny Chiu/Twitter alt=Conservative MP Kenny Chiu represented Steveston-Richmond East for less than two years before losing in the 2021 election. Photo: Kenny Chiu/Twitter

But he was convinced that he had lost votes because of the way his stances had been presented to Richmond's Chinese communities.

For instance, Chiu was the sponsor of a private member's bill to create a foreign agent registry, introduced to parliament in April. The bill, which only reached the first reading before the election was called, would have obliged "individuals acting on behalf of a foreign principal to file a return when they undertake specific actions with respect to public office holders", according to parliament's summary.

But messages circulated on WeChat said the bill would have a "very negative impact" on mainland Chinese immigrants, whom it was said to be targeting.

"There has been so much information and disinformation," said Chiu. "There was no chance for me to dispel that."

issues, for instance, by banning Huawei Technologies Co. from 5G networks and withdrawing Canada from the Chinese-led Asian Infrastructure Investment Bank.

"[Our] issue is with China's communist government and leadership. The communist leadership represents a clear and rising threat to Canadian interests - and our values," the platform said. "They've abducted our citizens, targeted our economy, and intimidated members of the Chinese Canadian community."

Canada's Liberal Prime Minister Justin Trudeau campaigns in Richmond Hill, Ontario's second-most Chinese electorate, last week. Photo: Reuters alt=Canada's Liberal Prime Minister Justin Trudeau campaigns in Richmond Hill, Ontario's second-most Chinese electorate, last week. Photo: Reuters

The state of China-Canada relations have been abysmal since the arrest of Huawei executive Meng Wanzhou on a US fraud warrant in Vancouver in December 20 18. That was followed by China's arrest of Canadians Michael Kovrig and Michael Spavor, both of whom Beijing accuses of espionage, but are regarded as hostages by Ottawa.

In 20 19, Chiu won his seat by a comfortable margin over Liberal Joe Peschisolido, 41.7 per cent to 35.1 per cent.

On Monday, he resoundingly lost to Liberal Parm Bains by 42.8 per cent to 33.4 per cent, according to the Elections Canada tally as of Wednesday morning.

In Richmond Centre, Wong had cruised to victory in 20 19 with a 20.5 point margin (49 per cent to 28.5 per cent). She is now facing defeat at the hands of Liberal Wilson Miao, who led her by 39.4 per cent to 37.1 per cent, with some postal votes still being counted.

picked up a whopping 10.3 percentage points, sweeping Paul Chiang to victory.

That defied an Ontario-wide trend that saw the Liberal vote decline 2.7 percentage points and the Conservative vote go up 2 percentage points.

Speaking ahead of the election, University of British Columbia political-science professor Michael Byers said he had been sceptical of the impact of perceived efforts by the Chinese state to interfere in the vote.

"The Chinese Communist Party may be able to influence some people on WhatsApp or other social media, but I suspect most people in the Chinese diaspora in Canada have already formed their views on the Chinese Communist Party," he said. "It's unlikely people are taking direction."

It was, however, "inevitable" that China had become of increasing importance in Canadian elections, as it rose to superpower status and superseded Russia as a concern.

"As a geopolitically significant force, China hasn't been in this position for several centuries and it's back, big time," said Byers. "So it quite rightly occupies a place in Canadian foreign policy it didn't have before."

This article originally appeared in the South China Morning Post \(SCMP\), the most authoritative voice reporting on China and Asia for more than a century. For more SCMP stories, please explore the SCMP app or visit the SCMP's Facebook and Twitter pages. Copyright © 2021 South China Morning Post Publishers Ltd. All rights reserved.

Copyright (c) 2021. South China Morning Post Publishers Ltd. All rights reserved.

RECOMMENDED STORIES

Benzinga
Kevin O'Leary Says You Need Millions On Hand To Survive — 'You Have To Get To A Place Where You Have $5 Million In The
Kevin O'Leary, Shark Tank star and investor, sparked significant discussion with his assertion that individuals need $5 million in their bank accounts to ensure lifelong financial stability. In an August 2023 YouTube video,...

Motley Fool
Billionaire Investor Bill Ackman Owns Nearly $1.5 Billion of This Dividend King. Should You Buy Shares, Too?
Ackman's Pershing Square hedge fund has owned this great dividend stock since 2018.

Ad • Online Shopping Tools
Amazon Hates When Prime Members Do This, But They Can't...

Motley Fool
2 Rising Biotechs That Could Become the Next Novo Nordisk
Each of these companies has a big market in its sights.

USA TODAY
'Gray divorce' rates have doubled. But it's a costly move, especially for women
The divorce rate has doubled since 1990 for Americans over 55. And in financial terms, few "gray divorcees" are better off.

Fox Business
Owners of famous Philly cheesesteak chain sentenced in $8M tax fraud scheme
Two owners of Tony Luke's in South Philadelphia, which is known for their popular cheesesteak sandwiches, were sentenced to prison for tax fraud.

Ad • microcapwatch.com
This Stock Is a Sleeping Giant

Motley Fool

If Toyota Is Right, Is Rivian in Serious Trouble?

If you're a skittish EV investor, you might not want to read these comments from Akio Toyoda.

9h ago

Motley Fool

Billionaire Bill Ackman Has Just 7 Stocks in His Portfolio. Are Any of Them Right for You?

Ackman is one of the most talked-about hedge fund managers.

8h ago

Ad • Canadian Life Rates

Canadians Under 74 With No Life Insurance Should Claim...

News Direct

Investors Take Note as Corbus Pharma Releases Data for ADC Tumor Candidate

New York, Jan. 29, 2024 - (Plato Data) -- Corbus Pharmaceuticals (NASDAQ:CRBP) jumped on Friday after announcing positive data from a small group of cancer patients who received its antibody-drug c...

7h ago

Motley Fool

Will AMD Stock Follow Intel's Lead and Plummet After Earnings?

What Advanced Micro Devices investors should know before earnings.

3h ago

Motley Fool

3 Warren Buffett Stocks I Wouldn't Touch With a 10-Foot Pole in 2024

Berkshire Hathaway holds stakes in roughly 50 stocks. Three of these companies are worth avoiding in the new year.

8h ago

Ad • Hear Clear

People born before 1969 in Ontario Eligible For Hearing Aids

TipRanks

'Time to Pull the Trigger,' Says Oppenheimer About These 3 Stocks

The S&P 500 has been reaching record highs again. The strong investor sentiment has been supported by the falling rate of inflation, and expectations that the Federal Reserve will have room to cut back on interest rates this year. This has colored Oppenheimer's chief investment strategist John Stoltzfus' current take on the economy. "In our view 'so...

seeing favorable earnings estimate revision activity an... 5h ago

Zacks Super Micro Computer and Texas Instruments have been highlighted as Zacks Bull and Bear of the Day Super Micro Computer and Texas Instruments are part of the Zacks Bull and Bear of the Day article.

5h ago

Ad • BuzzDaily Winners Most Realistic +18 Game Of 2024

Zacks Will New Drugs Drive Pfizer (PFE) Sales in Q4 Earnings? Investor focus is likely to be on the sales numbers of Pfizer's (PFE) several newly launched drugs like Abrysvo, Velsipity, Penbraya as well as newly acquired products like Nurtec and Oxbraya on the fourth-quarter...

5h ago

Motley Fool Why Zim Integrated Shipping Stock Is Cruising Higher Today Wall Street says "the script has flipped" for this global shipping company.

3h ago

Motley Fool Will Tesla Stock Reach $100? Tesla is off to a tough start in 2024 with its stock down 25% already.

3h ago

Ad • Burn Belly Fat Cardiologists: How Older Women Are Losing Weight Quickly

Zacks Strength Seen in Repligen (RGEN): Can Its 4.3% Jump Turn into More Strength? Repligen (RGEN) witnessed a jump in share price last session on above-average trading volume. The latest trend in earnings estimate revisions for the stock suggests that there could be more strength down the road.

8h ago

USA TODAY

How Americans can tap 401(k) type funds without a tax penalty, build up workplace savings

2 Incredible Dividend Stocks to Buy Hand Over Growth stocks might get more headlines, but these two dividend stocks are worth a... 8h ago

