Canada Federal Election September... (438)

Forward: Dear Mr. O'Toole, I'm reporting Obama for recommending Trudeau on Twitter yesterday. This is blatant foreign interference in the Canadian election. Please send your Party's Mr. Kenny Chiu, who is excellent at capturing spies, to Washington to arrest Obama. Foreign powers must not be allowed to act outside the law. Waiting for Mr. Chiu's success!

Any news bad here about China will eventually have negative impacts on us. [emojis]
 Because we always see bad things about China in the news, it would cause mainstream society furious [with China], right? They can't arrest anybody because China is so far away.
 As they look around, they'll see you and me in street. You won't be able to tell right away [how they feel] just by looking at them—they keep their dislike for you Chinese Canadians on the inside. [emoji]

Information being circulated online:

For the past several days, Kenny Chiu has been blaming the interference from Chinese government and Chinese-owned media for his loss in the election. When a media host asked him for evidence, he could not provide anything valid. After he lost the election, he did not reflect at all on his behaviour during the past several years: During the pandemic, he did not express concern on hardships of the people; he completely neglected the drastic rise in racist incidents; he never declared his stance towards Stop Asian Hate activities. All that he did was tear apart Chinese communities and go to Hong Kong to support violence and riots, which almost made us believe that he was an MP of Hong Kong aiming to destroy himself and everyone around him. He is paid with contributions from Canadians, but served political groups of another countries and regions—this is why people of his electoral district rejected him. It has nothing to do with the Chinese-owned media! Michael Chong, who is very anti-communism, won the re-election. The leader of the Conservative Party did not blame Chinese government for his loss, but announced that he will seriously reflect on the reasons for his defeat. Kenny Chiu not only did nothing, he shirked [the responsibility] [...]

Chiu's groundless accusations are an insult and complete betrayal of the electorate. They also show contempt for, and are an attack on, the democratic election system.

Kenny Chiu has disregarded the facts and has not shown respect for the election results. He continues to expose his arrogant, utilitarian and politically opportunistic nature. He will certainly be despised and rejected by the insightful people in the Conservative Party, which will further prove that the electorate's choice is correct:

Kenny Chiu is an opportunist and is incapable of serving the voters!

What's even more disgraceful is that Sing Tao Daily, which is so-called "mainstream" Chinese media, published Chiu's false accusations at great length, instead of interviewing the voters in the electoral district for their underlying reasons of why they didn't vote for Chiu. Neglecting voices of the people, Sing Tao Daily aired its grievances about Chiu's defeat. They consider the electorate to be misled and lack of judgment. Sing Tao Daily completely lost the neutrality that a media outlet should have.

Chiu's defeat proved a simple truth:

The people cannot be deceived, and the will of the people cannot be violated!

After being defeated, responsible MPs should do the following:

Apologize to the electorate, improve themselves, do more concrete things for the people to win the electorate's trust, and aim to win in the next election.

What's despicable is that, after his defeat, Kenny Chiu started shift the blame onto others instead of reflecting on his own issues.

He blamed the leader of the Conservative Party for making changes to policies while criticizing others for discrediting him and accusing the electorate of being misled.

Is it possible that the electorate be misled that easily? Chiu's groundless accusations are an insult and complete betrayal of the electorate. They also show contempt for, and are an attack on, the democratic election system.

Regarding the article from Sing Tao Daily, reader Tommy commented:

The main reasons for Kenny Chiu's defeat are that he did not carefully listen to the voices of the electorate and did not offer satisfying services to the electorate. He therefore lost the electorate's trust and favour, which led to the defeat in the election!

An MP is the represents the public opinion of an electoral district. If the MP cannot represent the interests of the voters or offer services that satisfy their needs, it is only natural that the MP would be cast aside. This is the primary purpose of the democratic election system, and it also the rights and responsibilities of the electorate.

Chiu's defeat in the election conforms to the popular will of the people in his electoral district. This is a victory for the democratic election system.

After his defeat, Chiu did not seriously reflect whether he had served his electorate to the best of his ability as he should as an MP. He did not think about which of his past behaviours have violated the interests of the electorate. He did not find his think about his own problems and correct his faults to better serve the electorate.

I guess Alice Wong will also lose the Richmond Centre electoral district. Two Conservative MPs of Richmond will be defeated by the Liberal Party.

It does not matter if it's a majority government or a minority government [emojis]. Ethnic Chinese were the ones who benefited the most from this election. There is no room for anti-China politicians, especially ethnic Chinese politicians.
